Birthday Wishes . . .

• May I thank . . . those who, through the years, have made the CBC a wonderful source of company, entertainment, instruction and especially, unfailing sustaining comfort that it has been to both my husband (who is not here now) and myself. I cannot think what life would be without the CBC.

We joined (the) ranks (of your audience) in the early '40s. Many times we sensed danger from (your) ill-wishers. Somehow, this was battled out. . . . May you ever be so protected, for you certainly have delivered the goods. . . .—Mrs. M.W., High River, Alta.

On Mr. Jagan and Rev. Herron

• Just a comment on a couple of programs that I have heard and seen recently.

First, regarding Close-Up on Sunday evening about a month ago. It was entitled, I believe, "Don't Label Me" and dealt with Mr. Jagan. I thought this was very well done and I hope the CBC continues to present such programs.

Secondly, the Rev. Shaun Herron's recent radio talk on the Church in the European Communist countries was in my opinion excellent. Mr. Herron is one of the very few clergymen that I know of in Canada who has something to say that is worth hearing and at the same time has a marvellous radio voice. The CBC would do well to make frequent use of this man.—The Rev. A.M.W., Red Lake, Ont.

Bouquet for Music Break

• To Music Break: I thought you might like to hear from one of your satisfied viewers. Your show today was quite terrific from both the musical and comedy angle. I just don't think there's a girl on television who can come close to equalling the visual appeal of Florence Faiers. . . .

Georges LaFleche has the Frenchman's secret weapon—charm. You are a happy, talented lot. I shall remain a fan.—Mrs. J.C., Winnipeg.

A Powerful Voice

• Just thought that I would drop you a line to let you know that we can get CBK loud and clear, but only in the evening. My husband is from Prince Albert, so we enjoy your station very much. Keep up the good work.—Mrs. J.P., Arkona, Ont.

Deadline-itis

• What goes on?

A month ago you had Bliss "Carman" an American. Today's Junior Magazine program note says Pierre Berton is an Alaskan.

Whitehorse, Yukon Territory, is not Alaska.

It is hoped that the documentary is more accurate than the note, or Juniors will have queer ideas of their country.

Some seniors already have: I have noticed that many Canadian broadcasters say "America" when they mean "United States." By long custom, and for lack of a (simpler) name, the people of the U.S. have arrogated for themselves the name "American," but America is two continents of 22 independent countries and many colonies . . . and the United States is not America.—J.F.H., Bentley, Alta.

Camera Canada "Stupendous"

• I cannot find proper words to express my feelings about your program Camera Canada (October 30th) except to say "stupendous." Oh, the memories it brought back! I spent the entire time of the program with a lump in my throat, and not a few tears.

I was a little girl again with my chair pulled close to my father's old rocker by the radio, sharing many happy evenings with him. Oh, for the bliss of those days again.

In closing, a special thank-you to J. Frank Willis, who filled the role of commentator perfectly. — Mrs. D.V., Saskatoon.

CBC's two television networks—the French and the English—number 64 stations, 16 CBC-owned and 48 owned by private interests. In addition, there are 26 re-broadcasting stations.

Citizens' Forum Debates:State Medicine For Canada?

HOW GOOD is government medical care? Can a high quality of medical services be maintained under a government scheme? Should emphasis be placed on private medical plans in Canada or should we press for "state medicine"?

Questions such as these will be examined and discussed when CBC's Citizens' Forum holds a National Debate in Dartmouth, N.S. The panelists will present their views as to what kind of health plan is best suited to Canada's needs.

The debate will be recorded on videotape Friday, November 17, for telecast on CBC television, in two parts, November 19 and 26. It will also be heard on CBC radio November 23 and 30.

Participants will be the national vice-president of the New Democratic Party, David Lewis, Q.C., Toronto, and the Prince Edward Island representative on the Executive Committee of the Canadian Medical Association, Dr. J. A. McMillan, Charlottetown. Acting as chairman will be Professor John Hardie, Pine Hill Divinity Hall, Halifax.

Citizens' Forum is a joint project of the CBC and the Canadian Association for Adult Education and participating organizations, and the first ten programs will be held as public meetings, giving a proper setting for the discussion of national issues. With this in mind, organizations across Canada are assisting CAAE and the CBC in securing audiences who will participate in the discussions.

On Our Cover . . .

Belen Amparan, internationally acclaimed singer, is featured in the title role of what must be the world's most-loved opera, Bizet's Carmen, Monday on Festival. (See feature, page 5.)

A NEW LISTENING experience is promised for CBW and CBK listeners who tune in to Announcer's Choice Friday, Nov. 17 at 11:30 pm. Hosts Chuck Skelding and Harvey Dawes are featuring LP's recorded in a new manner. "Four separate signals are recorded side by side on a master tape to provide stereophonic" — though single-speaker — "high fidelity records," says the manufacturer. Listeners should be able to detect a new sound quality approaching that of a stereophonic record player. The bands of Ted Heath, Eric Rogers and Edmundo Ros are featured. For more details, see the Late Notes Column on page 4.

CUE FOR MUSIC, Let's Meet Jose, and Nice and Easy, musical variety programs on CBC radio, were to be taped at the Red Cross Lodge of Deer Lodge Veterans' Hospital in Winnipeg November 14, to be broadcast this week. The three programs will be performed not only for the benefit of the audience in the auditorium: they will be carried over the "under the pillow" speaker system to patients not able to get out of bed.

LIKE AN ICEBERG only a small part of the CBC is comparatively apparent to the public. Behind the radio and television programming seen and heard on the air are hundreds of men and women working to make the programs produced a reality.

For 25 years—since our founding—Laurie Thompson, music librarian of the CBC in Winnipeg, has been directing one of those behind-the-scene departments.

He literally started from scratch. For in 1937 when Mr. Thompson came to the CBC as a music producer, one of the standard problems was to find musicians with their own sheet music. A CBC music library was not only logical, it was inevitable.

In 1939 Mr. Thompson volunteered his services to organize the project. Today he directs a $100,000 music library which requires a staff of seven.

To meet Mr. Thompson you have to pick your time—after 1:00 pm to be exact, the only relatively quiet hour in an otherwise hectic day. He is a tall, sparse man and in showing you around his department displays a certain wry humour.

Lined against the walls of the corridors and rooms are large spinning drums holding the index cards, cross-indexed in such a way that any one of the library's more than 20,000 records can be found within seven seconds.

In fire-proof rooms are stored more than 50,000 valuable music scores, handwritten and printed, ranging from classical symphonies, "pop" dances and string quartets to crooner's ditties.

Showing some of the $35,000 worth of musical instruments that are under his care in the various studios, Mr. Thompson ruefully rubs a scratched grand piano damaged in a studio mishap and tells of the CBC's plan to have a temperature-

A Review of Silent Movies:

Hollywood's Greatest Days?

THIS THURSDAY night, CBC television presents an hour-long documentary, "Hollywood: The Golden Years," giving an historical account of the silent-movie era from 1903 to 1927.

That was the era of Mary Pickford, Rudolph Valentino, John Barrymore; the era of Birth of a Nation, The Sheik, The Gold Rush—the "golden era of Hollywood"; the era of silent movies.

Prior to 1903, most of the "movies" being produced in the United States, England and Continental Europe simply reported the obvious, such as a train puffing into a station or a horse jumping. These films usually lasted about as long as one of today's television commercials, but lacked imagination or story lines.

At the turn of the century, however, a Frenchman named Georges Méliès introduced imagination to the screen, becoming the first person to control his material instead of relying on real-life backgrounds. He painted his own scenery and manufactured his own stage properties, thus becoming the first to offer artificial background and contrived effect.

In 1903 an American, working for the Edison company, combined Méliès' story-telling with realism, producing the motion picture that is considered by most historians as a primitive classic. This "feature" which lasted for about nine minutes was The Great Train Robbery. The film made its producer and photographer, Edwin S. Porter, famous overnight. It gave the start to the outdoor film with real horsemen, a real train and natural action against a natural background. It was, in fact, the forerunner of the "western" film. It was also revolutionary in its technique. Whereas Méliès had constructed his fairy-tales from a number of detached scenes in logical sequence, Porter made the sequence dramatic rather than logical. He built up his story from interdependent scenes. In other words, Porter discovered the arrangement of material which we call editing, the basic principle of cinema.

Following the acceptance by the public of The Great Train Robbery, other directors continued the pattern established by Porter. They increased the number of scenes in their stories, and camerawork was no longer confined to a studio; instead, outdoor shots were combined with the indoor settings to produce more realistic films. Before long, interest in the movies was increasing at a rapid rate throughout the world and in North America the nickelodeons and store shows became popular. Among the films being offered were cowboy pic-controlled room off each studio in which to store the musical instruments when not in use—keeping them in tune and undamaged.

In a small room is the sound effects department, with cupboards stacked with crockery, bricks and hammers. Hundreds of tapes carry such labels as "creaking stairs," "railroad crossing train whistles," and "footsteps with slamming door."

Mr. Thompson explained the intricate copyright procedure through which every piece of music to be used on radio and television has to be cleared through his department. The majority are cleared under blanket arrangements and annual fees paid by the CBC to the Canadian Association of Publishers, Authors and Composers (CAPAC) and Broadcast Music Incorporated (BMI).

In commenting on the past 25 years, he is reluctant to make any sweeping statement of achievement. As he puts it, "Time goes so fast. The most important thing still remains in the day to day achievements and in knowing that you are a member of a successful team."

CARMEN

Bizet's Beloved Opera On Festival Monday

"SHE WORE a red skirt, very short, which exposed to view her white silk stockings, with many a hole in them, and tiny shoes of Morocco leather tied with scarlet ribbons. She had thrown back her mantilla so as to display her shoulders and an immense bunch of acacia blossom, which was stuck in her chemise. She also carried a flower in her mouth, and she walked with the movement of a thoroughbred filly from the Cordoba Stud." She was vain, lustful, immoral, a tawdry slut with the power of hell in her, utterly callous, but with a voluptuous, impish charm few men could resist—least of all Georges Bizet, whom she inspired to write what is considered by many to be the perfect opera: Carmen. He based it on the novel by Prosper Mérimée, from which we quoted above.

Incredible as it seems, the opera was a box-office failure, and Bizet died at 36 a few weeks after its disheartening première in 1875, not knowing how many people were going to make money out of his hot-blooded music—a brilliant combination of pathos, passion, tragedy and humour.

CBC-TV presents it Monday night in a two-hour Festival production of Carmen from the CBC's Montreal studios. Production is by Jean-Ives Landry, who for six years has been producing leading French network musical programs. The conductor will be Otto Werner-Mueller, who studied with Richard Strauss, conducted opera in Heidelberg for some years, and has conducted a number of Concert Hour programs for CBC-TV in Montreal.

The cast is headed by vivid black-haired Metropolitan Opera contralto Belen Amparan in the title role. Miss Amparan is American by birth, Mexican by adoption, Spanish-Basque by descent, and is married to an Italian. Other soloists in the cast include young French tenor Louis Roney as Don José; Philadelphia-born baritone Frank Guerrera in the role of Escamillo, which he has sung regularly at the Metropolitan Opera since 1948; soprano Claire Gagnier as Micaela; Yoland Guerrard as Zuniga; Napoleon Bisson as Morales; Lucille Dansereau as Frasquita; Huguette Tourangeau as Mercedes; André Lortie as Ranendado; and Claude Letourneau as Dancaire. Direction will be by Irving Guttman, artistic director of the Vancouver Opera Association, who is also staging the complete 1961-62 season for the Baltimore Civic Opera. He and producer Jean-Ives Landry are presenting the opera in terms of the cinema, rather than of the theatre, as Bizet presented it. The singers will work within the camera's field of vision most of the time, in contrast with most TV productions, in which the camera follows them around. On the movie set, the cameras are more stationary. Every effort is being made to make the settings as realistic as those used on movie sets.

The stage of Studio 42 in Montreal, where the opera will be presented, is considerably smaller than the stage of the Metropolitan Opera or the Paris Opera, but more than 60 on-camera singers, actors and dancers will have to be fitted in. To make this possible the orchestra will play in a separate studio. In Studio 42 assistant conductor and chorus master Michel Perreault will listen to the orchestra through earphones and transmit the rhythm to the singers and dancers. Although it will be possible for soloists to hear the accompaniment to their arias very faintly, the dancers and chorus will depend entirely on Perreault to keep them performing in time with the orchestra.

Landry has trimmed Carmen down to two hours by removing any repetition which might slow the action, which he believes is extremely important in television. The result is a quick-paced dynamic version of the sensuous opera.

Louis Roney as Don Jose, and Claire Gagnier as Micaela, against one of the beautiful settings that characterize Festival's presentation of Carmen.

tures, tear-stained melodramas and slapstick comedy. During these early days of American film, actors from the legitimate stage scorned the movies and refused to have any part in them, telling all that for them to appear in movies would be degrading.

Yet, it was in a legitimate theatre, the Lyceum in New York, that Americans saw their first feature-length film, paying $1 each to see the four-reel epic, Queen Elizabeth, starring Sarah Bernhardt, on July 12, 1912.

The formative years between the pioneer work of Méliès and Porter and the outbreak of the First World War produced an endless stream of short-story films, gradually increasing in length from one reel to the four-reel epics such as Queen Elizabeth. Stories of all kinds became subjects of films and little by little the film broke free of the fair-ground and the music-hall atmosphere in which it had been bred, to become the universal entertainment.

David Wark Griffith, better known as Lawrence Griffith, turned his attention to the film industry around 1908. He created the art of the film, its language, its syntax. He refined such elements as cutting, the camera angle, the close-up and the last-minute rescue, mastered them and made them serve his purpose. He discovered ways to use his camera functionally, developed editing from the crude assembly of unrelated shots into conscious, artistic device."

Using these improved techniques, especially the close-up, Griffith

reached the dizzy heights of success in 1915 when he directed what still stands as one of the epics of Hollywood, The Birth of a Nation, starring Lillian Gish, Mae Marsh, Henry B. Walthall, Donald Crisp and George Siegman, among others.

While Griffith was producing his epics for the screen, another director was bringing slapstick comedy to a kind of wild perfection on film. He was Mack Sennett, who between 1912 and 1916, used all the tricks of fast, slow and reverse motion; all the lies the camera can tell and moulded them into the highly popular world of the "Keystone Cops," bathing belles and custard pies, in which there were no laws of reason or gravity.

From then until 1927, when the movies began to talk, the silent films enjoyed wide-spread popularity and introduced to millions the stars of the day.

In Hollywood: The Golden Years, movie star Gene Kelly will be narrator. The program includes scenes from 23 classic films such as Ben Hur, Birth of a Nation, The Sheik and The Gold Rush. More than 60 silent-movie stars are featured in the hour-long documentary. The musical score for the film was written by Elmer Bernstein, who has composed background music for many Hollywood films. Producer is David L. Wolper, who spent nearly two years viewing and selecting the best silent movies for the program.

Recommended Reading. Host Warren Davis discusses new books that are of interest to young people.

(CBWT Only) — Warren's Corner. Warren and three young friends interview Winnipeg fire chief D. S. Dunnett.

Jeunesses Musicales winner on Recital

Edmonton pianist Mark Jablonski, who won the National Piano Competition of the Jeunesses Musicales du Canada last July 8, will be seen on CBWFT (Chanel 6) this Wednesday November 22 at 10:00 on the program Récital.

Jablonski, a 22-year old native of Krakow, Poland, will play several works by his countryman, Frédéric Chopin—the Scherzo Op. 39, the Mazurkas, Op. 31 No. 4 and Op. 59 No. 1, and the Andante Spianato from the Grande Polonaise.

Describing his performance at the final concert in the summer competition of Les Jeunesses Musicales, Eric McLean of the Montreal Star wrote: "This young man is already a great pianist with the address, the sense of style and the technique and control of a seasoned professional. There is no doubt in my mind that within a very few years his name will be famous far beyond the frontiers of Canada."

Jablonski is a pupil of Rosina Lhevinne at the Juilliard School of Music in New York. Before going to New York, he studied in his native Poland, in Calgary (with Mrs. Gladys Egbert), Edmonton, and at the summer schools at Banff, Alta., and Aspen, Colorado.

As a winner of last summer's competition, Mark has been invited to give recitals for 50 J.M.C. groups in Canada, make an LP recording on the J.M.C. Record Club label, perform with ten Canadian symphony orchestras, give recitals on CBC radio and television, tour France to perform for Jeunesses Musicales groups there, and give debut recitals in New York and Paris.

The Composer SPEAKS

Back again is this Saturday evening program on CBC Trans-Canada, featuring interviews with contemporary composers

CRITICS, PERFORMERS and public all have their opinions, but the composers, who are really the only people who know the answers to the whys and wherefores of modern music, seldom get a chance to defend and explain themselves outside their music. Some of the most interesting of them in North America and abroad are being invited to talk about their work, and how it fits into the contemporary musical scene, with recorded illustrations, in a CBC radio series called The Composer Speaks. The second edition begins on Saturday, November 25. John Roberts is the program organizer.

"Today," says Roberts, "the challenge to composers seems greater than ever. Many people with a cultivated interest in contemporary music, and even composers themselves, feel that music has gone into a hiatus, that very little of consequence is being written.

Others say that music is developing a new language ahead of its time, and the public has yet to catch up. Music for films often uses advanced harmonies which people will accept because there are other dimensions in the production to concentrate on as well. In reverse, the general public today finds the organum strange, but to people of 900 to 1200 A.D. it was a normal sound. Josquin Deprés, for instance, was a stunningly great composer in the Netherlands school in the late 15th century, but he sounds foreign to many people today.

"The vast contemporary musical scene we'll be looking at in this series has all shades of expression, all kinds of composers. Some are traditionalists, saying in their own personal way what has been said before for hundreds of years, others are most avant garde, trying to invent a new musical language, a new dimension of sound with electronics. We will try to present all facets of contemporary music. In the first series, along with some 'way out' composers, we included Arthur Bliss, who is definitely a traditionalist, and has been less affected than others by the chaotic world we live in. In this new series we're including Darius Milhaud, who is almost a people's composer. His music presents few difficulties for the ordinary listener. Someone like Hans Werner Henze is very much a product of the 20th century, especially of the pressures of the age of anxiety. The post-war years have shaped him and others in a way identifiable to us even if we don't agree with all they say. In a later series we hope to present an

by ERNIE AFAGANIS

TO MOST Western Canada football fans, 1961 has been a great season—not only have they been able to see a full season of Western Conference action, but through the efforts of the CBC, they have also had the pleasure of seeing the National Football League in action. And, as if this isn't enough they have also had a good look at the type of football that is played in the Eastern Collegiate League. The opera lover may not be too impressed, but the football nut, and the sports fan are having a real ball. Football is not the only sport available either—bowling from Toronto (Saturdays on CBC-TV) brings interest to the entire country because the top bowlers in the Dominion take part each week in a knockout competition. In the near future, the West will get a treat as All-Star Curling gets underway (for non-curlers, the game is introduced Saturday, November 25, on "The Roaring Game"), and of course we mustn't forget the top draw of them all—NHL hockey. This, you must admit, is great viewing for the sports fan.

To get back to football—the western viewer, for the first time, has been exposed to the National League brand of play. Names such as Lenny Moore, Johnny Unitas, Paul Hornung, Sam Huff, Bart Starr and many others are now discussed as easily as Leo Lewis, Willie Fleming and Jackie Parker. Everyone has an opinion on the comparison between the two leagues, the NFL, and the CFL. Some like the NFL better, some don't, but everyone enjoys watching.

Probably the most glaring difference between the two leagues is the role of the punt. The NFL seems to have the (Please turn to page 29) interview with Karlheinz Stockhausen, the controversial young German composer whose work is so far 'out' that he thinks Henze is conservative!"

In the first broadcast, Helmut Blume talks to Netherlands composer Henk Badings. The interview was recorded when Blume was in Europe a few months ago. Badings is one of the most prolific and versatile of the Dutch composers. After some years' work in the geological field, with composing a sideline, he gave up science to devote himself to music, and for the last 15 years his work has been entirely in composition. He has written piano and vocal works, chamber music and opera, but it is his orchestral works that have made his reputation abroad. Since 1952 his hobby has been electronic music. He has contributed several notable works to this new and controversial medium, some pure electronics, some combining electronics with traditional instruments.

French composer Darius Milhaud was interviewed in New York for the December 2 broadcast, on his way back to Europe from conducting classes at the music school at Aspen Colorado. The interviewer is one of his former pupils, Canadian composer Murray Adaskin. Milhaud is heavy and arthritic, and it is extremely difficult for him to get around, so he spends much of his time in a wheelchair. Generally he shies away from talking about his own works, but in this interview he doesn't hesitate to probe into the background of his compositions and techniques, which have been described as varying from flippantly vulgar to expressively poetical, dry and harsh, and warmly lyrical. He has strong likes and dislikes in music—hates Wagner and loves folk music, and absolutely refuses to footnote some of his music, folk melodies in particular.

His output is prodigious, in nearly every field, including TV. Last May, when he was asked which of his 250 compositions he would like

FRENCH TV HIGHLIGHTS

City Ballet on L'Heure du Concert, at 9:00 p.m. Viewers will remember the New York City Ballet for its superb showing, in March 1960, of three ballets by Stravinsky: Orphee, Apollon, Musagete and Agon. Choreographer Georges Balanchine, who directed that program, will feature other aspects of his talent in this week's concert, as he directs the Liebeslieder Waltzes by Brahms, and Divertimento No. 15 in B flat by Mozart.

The production comprises all the romance and charm of the Brahms work and the classic, clear-cutness of the Mozart love song. Originally, both works were destined for a quartet of mixed voices and duo-pianos. They have become under the inspiration of Georges Balanchine, something of a laudation of the waltz, in a background recreating Imperial Vienna.

The vocal portion will be rendered by Le Petit Ensemble Vocal under the direction of Georges Little. It features Claire Grenon-Masella, Marcelle Monette, René Lacourse and Claude Létourneau. The ballet will feature eight of the top solo dancers of the Company, in costumes by Mme. Karinska. Scenery is by David Hays.

L'Heure du Concert alternates each week with a TV theatre or a feature film. These are presented as part of the Thursday evening spectaculars, at 9:00 p.m., on Channel 6.

The ups and downs of the business world are recorded Tuesday at 8:00 p.m. on CBC Radio's Business Barometer.

SPORTS—ERNIE AFAGANIS

advantage in place kicking — field goals of more than 40 yards are not uncommon in the NFL, while in Canada a field goal of that distance is seldom attempted. In punting however, the NFL has taken away its real importance. In the NFL, a punter must be able to kick with more accuracy. He must be able to put it out of bounds near the goal line, for if it rolls into the end zone, the ball is brought out to the 20, and the defending team takes over, first and ten. Distance is only important to the NFL punter when his club is deep in its own territory. There is no single point in the NFL. Here in Canada, many games are won and lost with the single point, making the punt a valuable offensive weapon. The Canadian punter must be able to kick the ball a long way, and his extra distance usually rewards the team with the all-important single point.

There are several minor differences in rules. The NFL has four downs, a shorter and narrower field, no backfield in motion and such, but the basic rules are the same: blocking and tackling are still what makes a winning team providing you have the fair share of material to work with.

One of the more interesting features for Canadian fans viewing NFL ball is the number of former great and not-so-great Canadian footballers now plying their trade down south. Perhaps the prime example is former Montreal Alouette, Alex Webster, who this year has returned to form for the front-running New York Giants. There are many more. Remember John Henry Johnson who tore the league apart in his only year with Calgary? He's now running the full-back slot for the Pittsburgh Steelers. Eddie LeBaron, who couldn't make the grade as the Stampeders quarterback is now guiding the Dallas Texans. Former Edmonton Eskimo great Dale Meinart went south with Frank "Pop" Ivy and today is one of the game's acknowledged great linebackers with the St. Louis Cards. Bill Glass, everyone's All-American, played his first year of professional ball for Saskatchewan Roughriders and then departed to Detroit where he has shored up the Lions' front wall as a first-string defensive lineman.

It would be unfair to make a comparison between the two leagues for one reason. Canadian teams are allowed only 12 playing imports, while NFL teams are made up completely of imports by our standards. The teams in the NFL are, on the average, heavier, and a bit faster. However, Canadian fans love their brand of ball—according to our survey, they prefer it — but they all admit the fact that both leagues are wonderful to watch. The CBC has definitely made a hit with the western football and sport fan.

to have played in his honour at a festival in Hempstead, Long Island, he pointed out that the number was actually 350. Research revealed that it had gone up to 385 since Milhaud's last count, and it has probably risen again since then.

Luigi Dallapiccola (December 9) was interviewed at his home in Florence, Italy, by Maurizio Pardi. Dallapiccola is one of the few Italian composers who consistently used the 12-tone system for some years, but he abandoned it in favour of a diatonic style and Italian folk melos. In composing he favours the larger forms of musical expression.

When BBC producer and TV personality Humphrey Burton interviewed Hans Werner Henze for the December 16 program, Henze was in London, England, on his way to Glyndebourne to conduct the world première in English of his opera Elegy for Young Lovers. "Henze," says John Roberts, "is a sort of synthesis of all the techniques and musical languages of today. He writes serially, uses jazz elements, has written a work for two jazz combos and orchestra, and uses all kinds of peculiar orchestral groups when they are necessary for expressing what he has to say. For instance, in his radio opera A Country Doctor, he uses three tenors, an organ and a variety of other things, not as gimmicks, but to express something special he could say in no other way."

Henze's development as a composer has had several stages. He started in Germany as an ardent follower of Hindemith and Stravinsky. In 1948 he adopted the Schoenberg 12-tone technique, and then, after experimenting with serial composition and other techniques, he joined all these elements in a distinctive style that has made him one of the most-discussed young contemporary composers. He makes his home in Italy, where he is alert to every new trend and technical development and puts them to imaginative uses nobody else seems to hit on, with special attention to colour and harmonic and orchestral spacing.

Twenty-seven-year-old Peter Maxwell Davies, one of the youngest of the English avant garde composers, will be interviewed on December 23 by Humphrey Burton. Davies has been attracting considerable attention recently, not only with his compositions but because of his ideas about music and musical education. Since 1959 he has been director of music at Cirencester Grammar School. He believes in exposing young people to the most advanced contemporary music at the same time as to the music of Beethoven and Mozart, and because children are unprejudiced, they accept both traditional and contemporary music naturally.

No Escape

"Many people claim not to have a conscience, but if you are one of them let me quickly undelude you. You have got a conscience and the very fact that you disown it is enough to prove that you have. Your conscience is your capacity for guilt feelings and also your capacity to resist temptation. It is also described by some people as your defence mechanism, and by others as that part of your personality which is soluble in alcohol."—Laurence Spicer reporting on the BBC program "Science and Industry."

Razzle Dazzle Has Fun and Games

RAZZLE DAZZLE, a new half-hour program of fun, games, quizzes, comic strips, adventure serials and Howard, the talking turtle, is seen Monday to Friday afternoons on the CBC-TV network.

The program is planned as a fast-moving pot-pourri of every kind of entertainment for youngsters, who are invited to take part in many of the daily features.

Howard, the talking turtle, is a featured regular on the show. (A puppet, he is manipulated by John Keogh.) From Howard's mouth will come words of wisdom, canny comments and jokes. His adventures are the subject of one of the daily comic strips and each Friday he turns "chef" to make a totally improbable recipe for his Mad Menu.

Host of Razzle Dazzle is CBC announcer Al Hamel. He is assisted by a junior hostess, 11-year-old Michele Finney.

A studio audience of youngsters take part in the show's games and quizzes, and across Canada, other children contribute by means of film. Each week, two young viewers vie for top score, and a prize, in a daily long-distance telephone quiz.

What is a "razzle dazzle?" Nobody really knows, so children are invited to delve into their imaginations and send in their impressions of what one may be. The job of transferring these impressions into something solid will be left to CBC's special-effects department and each Friday the best "razzle dazzle" will be shown on the program.

Contributing to the daily comic strips is the lightning-fast sketcher and cartoonist George Feyer. His drawings of two new comical characters, Percy Kidpester and Terwilleger Topsoil, are seen on Mondays and Thursdays. Daniel the Spaniel, a favourite of last season's Junior Roundup, will go adventuring each Tuesday in another comic strip.

ROAST PORK WITH RED CABBAGE

8 lb. pork shoulder roast

Have butcher chop off hock leaving a 5½ to 6 lb. roast. Put hock in freezer for a future meal. Take roast, rub well with salt, pepper and garlic clove and roast in 325 degrees oven for three hours — remove from oven, cut off string and skin. Glaze with your favourite glaze and put back into oven for ½ hour.

Red Cabbage with Apples

*2 tbsp. cooking oil
1 large onion
3 chopped apples
1 red cabbage—shredded (3 lb.)
½ cup water
5 tbsp. vinegar
1 tbsp. sugar
Dash of garlic powder
2 tbsp. salt*

Put cooking oil into large kettle, saute onions, add cabbage, apples, water, garlic and salt—lower heat and simmer for ½ hour then add vinegar and sugar and cook for 15 minutes more. Serve with roast pork.

HOT WATER PASTRY

One lb. lard or shortening (broken in a mixing bowl). Pour over that 1 cup boiling water. Mix until creamy. Put in refrigerator for one hour.

Sift the following: five level cups flour, one teaspoon salt, one teaspoon baking powder. Mix into the water and lard mixture.

PUMPKIN PIE

*2 eggs
¾ cup brown sugar
1 teaspoon ginger
1 teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
½ teaspoon salt
1½ cups cooked sieved pumpkin
2 cups scalded milk*

Beat egg slightly beat in sugar, spices and salt then pumpkin and scalded milk.

Pour into unbaked pie shell. Bake at 450 degrees for 10 to 15 minutes, then lower temperature to 350 degrees. Bake until custard is set—about 20 to 30 minutes or until a knife inserted into the centre comes out clean. Cool.

To Cook Pumpkin:

Cut pumpkin and remove seeds and stringy portion. Peel and cook in water until tender. Mash and put through sieve. Add salt. Put into kettle over boiling water to remove some of the moisture from pumpkin. This may be canned if so desired.
